The JABBERPROFFY

'Twas brillig, and the slimy toes,
Did gyre and gamble in the Libe,
All mimsy in the cactus groves,
And at Mom's or Rat's imbibe.

"Beware the Jabberprof, my son!
The jaws that wag while nap you catch!
Beware the A. B. C. and shun,
Frumented Brandyscratch!"

He took his vorpal pen in hand:
Long time the maxome point he sought—
So rested he in the Humdrum aud,
And sat awhile in thought.

And, as these uffish thoughts he bore,
The Jabberprof, with tests aflame,
Came whiffling thru the tugley door,
and burbled as he came!

One, two! One, two! "I'm through; I'm through!"
His vorpal pen went click and clack!
He cooled it dead, with empty head,
And went galumphing back.

"And hast thou slain the Jabberprof?
Come have a drink, my beamish boy!
O fratuous man! Yahoo! Hotdamn!"
He chortled in his joy.

'Twas brillig, and the slimy toes,
Did gyre and gamble in the Libe,
All mimsy in the cactus groves,
And at Mom's or Rat's imbibe.

EATING OUT

by john frankenstein

About four years or so before we came to Stanford, the Chaparral ran a column called "Now That Date." Here all wine-tasters and gluttons of the staff had their chance at recommending places to go. And things to do. This is what's supposed to happen here.

To keep with the theme of this issue, Education, we have decided to start off by talking about a few "specialty" restaurants in The City.

Indian (East) food is served at India House, 629 Washington (EX 2-2636). Cocktails too. Gobs of atmosphere, with turbaned waiters. Prices are more than moderate, but it's worth it. Reservations are recommended, unless you like waiting. BYOFlashlight.

Omar Khayyam's 196 O'Farrell (SU 1-1010) has just about everything except the girl and the "book of verses beneath the bough." But it does have shishkebab, rose petal jelly, and a whole assortment of Armenian foods, so you really can't complain. Reservations and money help out here.

For Russian food, go to The Miniature, 433 Clement St. (SK 2-4444). Here there is but no atmosphere at all, except for a jukebox that plays Russian songs. But the stroganoff is out of this world, and the check definitely is not.

And when you've gotten tired of eating, you might try some of the outstanding jazz joints in town. Or if you're in a more serious mood, go to the Opera. Saturday night performances don't need a tux or formal, and the schedule this year is one of the best in a long time.

REFLECTIONS

R. WENZEL
 1916

Now that the CHAPARRAL has fairly begun its 62nd year of publication, the Old Boy feels an urge to reflect on the years past and set the pace for the Forthcoming by reprinting the first "Now That" editorial that ever appeared in the CHAPARRAL:

Now that the CHAPARRAL is fairly started it may as well be understood just what it proposes to do. It hopes to sprinkle a few smiles among the men and women of Stanford, by crystallizing in print the fun of the University. "Chappie" will joke with you and have a good time generally, but he has no time for sorrow nor any inclination to weeping. He wants to be the exponent of college fun—Stanford fun—which is always pure fun without questionableness and without malice.

THE GOLDEN MEDIAN

The above is an indication of the 1899 sentiment toward University living. Today, of course, caution and security are the thing. Be conservative and liberal at the same time and your place in the Kingdom of Something will be assured. This philosophy takes different channels in different areas. For the University Residence Director, it means not allowing single girls to live off-campus even if they are over twenty one, so as to avoid disastrous decisions regarding non organizational extra curricular activities (conversely, girls who have been married cannot live with and contaminate the Vestals of the Hives). For the University planning office it means solving the traffic problem through use of a Maginot Line, and the consequent circumnavigation of the campus which must now be made at high speed to avoid being late. The Old One supposes it is sequitur to someone. For the Dean of Men it means emasculating the fraternities by putting them in an ant-hill complex of buildings. And finally, it means for the Student a course of study designed to assure him a "B" in Life.

COLLIERS

Until recently there has been a great to-do over the establishment of foreign campi, but to the CHAPARRAL and the Historian it represents another empirical verification of a great trend in Western Psychology. And, in fact, it is the last extant example of carrying coals to Newcastle we have run across.

WITH FERVOR

Possibly the best antidote for the stodgy group who administer the Student Government and the Rally Com and the

WHAT I REALLY
CAME TO COLLEGE FOR WAS TO GET MARRIED

other God-awful Rube Goldberg student administrations, is the policy of packing them off to some "Stanford-on-Matterhorn" to get quietly sozzled and reflect on how much of life they've missed by being such red hots. The rest of the student body benefits quite a bit from the absence of this cadre of foggy-minded idealism but far and away the most valuable service of the whole foreign study program is the faith it instills in the student that there is a life after academics.

COFFIN NAILS

Now that social commentary has taken the place of humor in the nightclubs, and the current comedian is the prophet of disaster, it seems to the Old Boy that now is the time for the person interested in humor, as opposed to necrophilia, to join us in the Manse of Laughter. You may have read our motto on the opposite page—if not, you should learn it now. "Tis better to have lived and laughed than never to have lived at all." To you who wish to contribute laughter, we invite you to join us. . . . to those of you who wish to enjoy laughter, we invite you to read us. . . . to those of you who wish to contribute nothing, we offer our condolences, our sorrow, and the back of our hammer.

The Making of the FRESHMAN

Frosh Jack Fort gets off the train at Palo Alto. Coming up to meet him is the local representative of PreRegCom. First impressions are the most important, and Jack's reaction to this meeting will last throughout his collegiate career. (Unfortunately the PreRegCom representative is effusively greeting Edinore Scritch, an IBM representative who has come to clean the tabulating machines at SRI. Jack Fort is behind and to the right.)

by JOHN
WOEHLER

Jack is told by the PreRegCom man that his conformist, non-collegiate high school getup of letterman sweater, slacks, polished loafers, argles, white shirt, and d.a. haircut is not the thing at Stanford. Jack decides to go into town immediately and pick up more suitable individualistic clothing for his collegiate career. His other sixteen hundred dollars worth of clothes are packed in mothballs for Choate reunions and fifty dollar a plate Democratic dinners.

After registering for his sixteen units of required courses, Jack pays the few necessary fees that Stanford requires and those fees which the University urges that the freshman pay for a comprehensive sampling of collegiate clubs and activities. These include football tickets, Ski Club, Young Republicans, Young Democrats, Young Zen League, IIR, Daily, Quad, Review, Sequoia, Gaieties, Sterling Retirement Fund, Car Registration, Class of '64, University Betterment Fund, Pre-RegCom Fun Fund, Fund for the Widows of the Unknown Soldiers, Con Home Fund, Fun Fund Fund, and anti-fraternity insurance Fund (fifty percent paid by the student and fifty percent by the University) and the Buy a New Pair of Shoes for Adlai Fund.

Jack is then shown his new quarters at Wilbur Hall, which have been remodeled for the new Honeycomb Compact Living & Study Plan recently instigated at Stanford. Each worker bee has the necessary privacy and compact convenience to get the most out of his study hours.

Jack's first college class is quite an experience as he hears the assignment for the following day and the list of books he has to buy. Others are equally surprised. High School was never like this!

Jack finds the social activities at College a bit different than at High School, where all he did was date an endless succession of "cute" high school girls and spend the evening the usual high school way of petting and necking in darkened automobiles. Now he enjoys the typical freshman male's evening of stimulating conversation and getting to know each other. (The typical frosh girl is spending her typical evening out with a sophomore, junior, or senior.)

Jack meets his first girl at Stanford. Some people say the frosh girls are hard to meet but he tried the time-honored technique of carrying her books and it worked . . . she lets him carry her books every day now.

Jack finally hits upon the answer to a happy adjustment to freshman life at Stanford.

The man who rolls his own cigarettes

This message is from

28 September

The Personnel Committee laid its new Plan before the President.

And beamed.

The President read it.

And frowned.

“This Plan tells me how to get men who smile pleasantly,

use a man’s deodorant,

bolster our company

bowling team

and greet me cheerily every Monday morning by asking, ‘Did you have a nice week-end, sir?’

Nice fellows, nothing wrong with them.

But we’re running a business not a country club.

Your Plan methodically screens out the man who is usually scowling, drinks coffee out of his saucer, spends miserable week-ends,

but will come in at seven o’clock

some Monday morning with a plan that will double

our business.”

The focal point of Leland Stanford Junior University is the Memorial Chapel. This is because it is at the end of Palm Drive. The Chapel's architecture, like many other things at the University, is peculiar to Stanford. It is called neo-Coca Cola. The sign on it says it was erected by Jane Lathrop Stanford. That's what it says. After all she was the first Stanford woman.

Jane Lathrop Stanford was married to Leland Stanford the elder. He built California. He made lots of money. Many people thought he was a bad man. (Especially people from other countries—like Hong Kong.) But he was really a good man. Because he was such a devoted father. He gave his boy (Leland) the best education he could. Little Leland was given private tutors and European tours. But he died. In Italy. Big Leland wanted other boys and girls to have all the things Little Leland never had. So he built Stanford. In California.<sup>2</sup>

Today Stanford Students have all the things Little Leland never had, viz:

I. Administrators

The President of the University is a father image. Like the Dean of the School of Letters and Sciences and the Dean of Students are dean images. This is because they exist only as sort of trans-human shapes in the students' minds. The students don't know what they really look like. This is because deans are semi-annual. They appear at the Freshman Convocation and at Commencement. And it's hard to remember what they look like when you only see them in dresses.

The other deans are the Dean of Men and the Dean of Women. They are in a class by themselves. They help students solve their problems. If the student doesn't have any problems, they give him some so that he can be helped.

You have many administrators to make up for what Little Leland didn't have. He had only parents. Only two.

II. Professors

Little Leland had ONE tutor giving him ONE set of facts at ONE time. This is narrow. Stanford students have many professors giving them many sets of facts at different times. This is known as "widening the student's intellectual horizons." He can think something different every time he gets a new professor. And he'll always be right. This is because all the Professors are right. (Even the ones who contradict each other.) Just ask one.<sup>3</sup>

III. Fundamental Standard

Little Leland never had the Fundamental Standard, he only had rules. Stanford Students have freedom because they have the Fun Stan. It is a very esoteric Standard. Many freshmen, in fact, have a hard time finding out what it means. This is because nobody else knows either. The Fundamental Standard was thought up by a man named David Starr Jordan. He was a very, very, good man. He was the first President of the University.<sup>4</sup> When he made up the Standard, David Starr Jordan was greatly influenced by a traditional school of thought in American Law. It is called "Ex post facto."

<sup>1</sup> Stanford University Bulletin of Courses and Degrees, 1960-61, p. 39. Note the Prerequisites: Pre-Stanfordism, Introduction to Primary Stanfordism Ia, Ib, and Mythology 239: Early Myths in California History.

<sup>2</sup> In view of this decision and its obvious implications, the current practice of shipping boatloads of students to Europe may well be treasonous.

<sup>3</sup> If cornered he may explain that the confusion exists in the student's mind. This may well be true.

<sup>5</sup> There is some evidence that Socrates may have solved it as indicated by the basic premise of his philosophy: "I refuse to listen because you are bad."

IV. Judicial Council

This is a group of people who know the difference between right and wrong. This is very important because ethical problems have puzzled philosophers for thousands of years.<sup>5</sup> Any particular set of Judicial Council members are elected by the student body. It is actually a fixed election since nobody else would consider running. They just sorta ask for the job.

V. Dormitories

Little Leland lived and studied by himself. This is Un-American.<sup>6</sup> Stanford Students live and study in groups. They eat in groups. They think in groups. They catch mono in groups. They have nervous breakdowns in groups. This is known as "belonging to the Stanford Family." Even today the University is working very hard to enlarge the Family cluster.

VI. Housemothers

Little Leland was separated from his mother at an early age. This was good because he was a boy. Stanford men need R.A.'s and Deans and Men's Council to look after them. But Stanford women get Housemothers too. This is because there are a lot of unemployed old women around who will work cheap.

VII. Western Civilization

This is a survey course which teaches freshmen how to study as well as all about Western Civilization. It is important because it introduces them to other fields in which they can take other survey courses. And at Stanford this is very important.

Western Civilization is where students learn how all the good people became bad and how all the bad people became involved in aggression and how all the Civ instructors became great minds in the field of History.

VIII. Social Life

Little Leland didn't have one. You don't get one either.

Is it worth it?

Professor Edward J. Marowby, Preacher of the Doctrine of True Self-Knowledge (best chug time 3.9 on a quart), traveled under the guise of Professor of Latin American Revolutions at Chutney. Marowby's love of a street riot was exceeded only by his disgust with the "Education-For-A-Well-Rounded Man" party line of Old Chutney College. He was deeply suspicious of the philosophy that claimed a person would become a cultured, wise bon vivant, a sophisticated Man of Letters, by simply completing a required number of general courses taught by grad students. And everybody figured that with a time like 3.9 he should know.

I cannot but marvel at the bizzare circumstances that surrounded my first contact with Marowby. It was midquarter and I had so far managed to miss Marowby's course since it met at 8:00. I finally had to go, however, when I awoke one morning at 7:30 to discover that my roommate had puked all over his bed the night before.

Marowby himself was tipsy that day (I later discovered that the Martinis Before Breakfast Club held regular Wednesday meetings). He began with a simple but heartwarming invocation: "Good morning, suckers."

Tweeks Bury

"Good ol' Mom and Dad had to eat beet porridge for breakfast so they could afford to send you here today, didn't they? They're smart; they know an education is the thing—without a degree or a Union Card you'll never make enough to pay your taxes. Of course, they can't admit that you're here for profit, and the College kindly supplies them with pamphlets about 'Higher Education' and 'The Responsibilities of Enlightenment' so they can delude themselves.

Twelersburg

"It doesn't quite get to Dad, though, does it? He's still apprehensive because he knows you could make more with that Union Card.

"Mom, I'll wager, enjoys the masochistic self-denial which lets her afford to send you here. She's sold on 'Education.' Is that what you really want, An Education? Why don't you go home, then, and read some good books? You don't have time to do it here.

"The parents wouldn't have that, would they? They've got to see that diploma which says 'COLLEGE Educated.' I feel sorry for all of you; that's a terrible stamp to carry the rest of your lives.

"It means you've been snuffed out by research professors who won't dirty their tweeds with teaching. It means that a bunch of immature graduate assistants and readers have shaped your thoughts and attitudes.

"Do you remember the strange thrill when you first went into your professor's office to ask a question and he gave you the long look of a Bronx Zoo Giraffe and didn't say a word? You sorta put your hand in your pocket and hoped you would find a peanut. And then he said 'Go see the graduate assistant.' You wanted to say 'But sir . . . he doesn't know a damned thing more about it than I do.'

"You didn't say that, though. You just mumbled that you wouldn't take any more of his valuable time and then left.

"That's what your 'COLLEGE Educated' stamp means. You poor bastards!"

But The Chappie staff has just informed me that there is another meaning to a diploma:

NOW THAT FLICK

I'M ALL RIGHT JACK Those French! Those Italians!! Those English!!! Thank God somebody can act these days! This is a superb satire and slam against Unions, Management, Justice, Greed, and anything else that the Director can think of. Peter Sellers has been getting his licks in lately, and this one is probably his best character of all. Terry Thomas is great also, and the rest of the cast is good. Best scene in the movie, though, is when Ian Carmichael is being shown through a giant candy factory full of vomiting machines and sickening candy. The avant-garde British cartoon shown with the feature is called Polygamous Polonius and it is just too good to miss.

OCEAN'S 11 This will be your first chance to see part of "The Group" in action, and, surprisingly, they are pretty interesting. This movie deals with Sinatra, as a man named Ocean ("Sinatra an Ocean? Why he ain't even a small Scotch and Water."), and his plan to rob the five largest Casinos in Las Vegas on New Year's Eve. Lest you think this plan a bit ambitious even for Ava's ex, he has the help of his old raiding squad from the 82nd Airborne. Despite some pretty ingenious planning, the flaw to this reviewer was how in blazes Sinatra got everyone in The Group on the payrolls of all the Casinos. Oh well, maybe he even owns them in the movie. It should have been longer, tho.

LET'S MAKE LOVE Despite the fine title, you never get a chance to see anyone do so. Just a little fine nibbling around the edges. Even so, it is a pretty fair movie . . . if you like La Monroe and what red-blooded and ratio-conscious Stanford male doesn't? To the great surprise of practically everyone, Miss Monroe has learned to act and is becoming a competent comedienne. Since Hollywood dope is that she has a mind like an IBM machine as far as furthering the career of one M.M., this figures.

PSYCHO If you dreamed you saw Janet Leigh in her Maidenform, here's your chance to check up and compare sizes. This is the movie to take your date to and have her climb all over you. There is an equal chance of you climbing all over her when that door opens to the bathroom, though. This is one to see—it's a shame that it wasn't in color, but I don't think that even Hitchcock would have the nerve. Just to foul up the people who ask you not to disclose the ending, though, for your information Janet Leigh didn't really die and does in the old lady herself—from her headquarters in the quicksand.

POLLYANNA Just to show you that Hollywood can still produce those gilded (or should it be gelded) turkeys characteristic of the late forties and all during the early and middle fifties, here comes this little sugar coated, cloyingly annoying bit of absurdity. I don't know if you hate child actors as much as we do, but Arrgh! Next comes Heidi and Black Beauty, and did you know that they were actually making a movie about that big-headed little horror of the Chronicle called Dondi?

THE APARTMENT Despite the theatre bills and the advances, this is not a comedy—but it is a very entertaining and witty movie. There is nothing of a "Laff Riot" in suicide, pandering, or executive cruelty to our way of thinking, but the acting is superb and Jack Lemmon, Shirley MacLaine, and Fred MacMurray are perfect. Do see this movie if you possibly can.

BEN-HUR This movie deserved "Best of the Year" for OSCAR time like Steve Reeves does for Hercules Unchained. You have to sit through two hours of gorp to watch the Chariot Race, which is the only good scene. Another miscarriage of justice is Charlton Heston winning an OSCAR for his performance in the movie. Heston has two expressions—an agonized grimace and an arrogant sneer, which he turns on and off when he can't think of anything else to do. His acting is generally that of a wooden indian with arthritis, although he moves less often than the former. The chariot horses should have gotten something, though, if only an award for being the most beautiful objects in the movie except for THE END appearing on the screen.

STRANGERS WHEN WE MEET Well, I dunno. I guess it's racy and all that, but it seems kind of a waste of Kirk Douglas and Ernie Kovacs. One of these days Kim Novak will learn to act and Stanford will go through an undefeated, untied, unscored-upon football season. Roughly the same odds. Pretty well summed up when Kim says to Kirk, "Do you really think it's been worth all this?" Naw, not really.

Once Upon a Pillow

I Once upon a time, long, long ago in a faraway country, there lived a beautiful princess.

2 One day when she had attended to court, she decided to go into the cool mountain stream.

5 If you will befriend a tortured soul, you will take me home with you and put me on your pillow tonight and this most foul curse will be broken."

6 So the fair princess gently carried the toad back to her room in the castle and as she prepared for bed she placed the toad on her pillow.

to all the affairs of the woods and take a bath

3 After she had been swimming a little while, she rested on the brook's edge, and to her surprise a large toad came hip-hopping up beside her and said:

4 "Fair maiden, I was once a young and handsome prince, but an ugly sorceress cast a spell on me and turned me into a toad. . . .

7 When she awoke the next morning, lo and behold there sleeping beside her was a young and handsome man and . . .

8 Strangely enough her mother, the Queen, didn't believe her story.

"Hello, street department? Who's the wise guy?"

A woman got on the train with nine children, and when the conductor came for her tickets she said:

"Now, these three are thirteen and pay full fare. These three are six years old and pay half-fare, and these three are only four and a half."

"Do you mean to say you get three every time?" asked the astonished conductor.

"Oh, no," replied the lady, "sometimes we don't get any at all."

A drunk finally found the keyhole and enters the house where he stumbles around looking for the light. Wife calls down: "That you Henry?" No answer. A big crash of glass. "Henry! What in the world are you doing?"

"Teaching your goddam goldfish not to bark at me!"

Father—Johnny, what makes you skip school all the time?

Johnny—Class hatred.

A young married woman wanted the new maid to be pleased with the new job. "You'll have a good time of it here," she explained, "because we have no children to annoy you."

"Oh, I've vari fon' a chillun, ma'am. So don' go restrictin' yose'f on mah 'count."

The train for Washington had just pulled out of Norfolk and the passengers settled back for the journey. A tall, dignified man entered the club car, and, addressing the passengers, asked, "Is theah a gentleman from Shelby County, Kentucky, present?"

One man stood up and said that he was from Shelby County.

"Fine!" beamed the first man. "I wondah if I might borrow youah co'kscrew."

Lawyer (for auto-accident victim)—Gentlemen of the jury, the driver of the car stated he was going only four miles an hour. Think of it! The long agony of my poor, unfortunate client as the car drove slowly over his body.

Prof—Young man, do you think you can make my daughter happy?
Jock—Can I? Say, you ought to have seen her last night.

Let's drop an apple just to be sure.

But, darling, why aren't you wearing my fraternity pin?

All the fellows say it scratches their fingers.

There was a little old lady who lived in Palo Alto and she had two pet monkeys. One day one of them took sick and died. A couple of days later the other one died of a broken heart. Wishing to keep them, she took them to a taxidermist.

"Want them mounted, lady?" he asked.

"Oh, no," she said, "just have them holding hands."

A lovely young thing had just been brought into the hospital for an operation. The doctor examined her and told her to undress and prepare for the ordeal. She did so and climbed on a wheel table, after which the nurse covered her with a sheet and left.

Presently down the hall came a man clothed in white. He paused when he came to the girl, lifted the sheet, took a look, then dropped it and went on his way. Behind him came another white-clad figure who did the same, and then a third who repeated the action.

"For heaven's sake," cried the girl, "when are you going to operate?"

The third man in white cleared his throat and answered. "Damned if I know, lady, we're just the painters."

A soldier who had been abroad for three years and heard that he was being shipped home, wired his girl, "Better take some tetanus shots, honey, I've gotten rusty."

The bride was very much distressed when she found twin beds in the hotel room. She thought they were getting the room all to themselves.

A professor was giving his class an oral quiz and picked upon a particular unfortunate specimen for his most difficult question.

"Who signed the Magna Charta?"

No answer.

"Where were you on Friday?"

"Drinking beer with my buddies."

"How do you expect to pass this course if you drink beer when you should be in class?"

"I don't know, guy. I just came in to fix the radiator."

Sigma Chi — Jinkies! That was some babe you were with last night. Where did you get her?

Delt—Dunno, I just opened my wallet and there she was.

The stud lounging on the corner eyed the blonde passing by and gave her the big hello.

I was weekendng with an Englishman and his wife. By accident I happened on the man's wife in her bath. Making a hurried exit, I immediately sought out my host, who was reading in his room, and proffered an apology. He brought his head up out of his book, regarded me for a moment, and remarked: "Quite a skinny old thing, isn't she?"

Two burly cannibals caught a charming nymphet and carried her before their chief. He casually looked her over, yawned, and said, "I believe I'll have breakfast in bed this morning."

His wife lay on her death bed. She pleaded: "John, I want you to promise me that you'll ride in the same car with my mother at my funeral." He sighed: "All right, dear. But it's going to ruin my whole day."

"In this bottle I have peroxide which makes blondes, and in this bottle I have dye which makes brunettes."

"Yeah, and what's in the third bottle?"

"Gin."

The little moron's watch had stopped ticking and he tried to find the trouble. Finally he took the back off it, went into the works, and found a dead bug. "No wonder it doesn't work," he said, "the engineer's dead."

A very tired soldier went into a USO center where there were long lines for Christmas parties, coffee and food, and one for beds. What our hero wanted was a bed. But he got in the party line by mistake.

the 5C's of diamond value

PLUS
 AND SCIENCE

our DIAMONDSCOPE — is invaluable in detecting a diamond's "inner secrets." What does this mean to you? That Gleim's know and guarantee the quality of every diamond they sell — added assurance of full diamond value.

the COLORIMETER — an instrument combined with photo-electric cell, working with filters, determines the exact color grades of diamonds. Exclusive in this area at Gleim's, the instrument removes all guesswork.
