CRASH COMICS

CRASH COMICS

The Four Professors and their various witty quips first appeared in The Stanford Chaparral in 1941. We asked the staff what they had to say on the matter:

"So first it's the opera, then the funeral home? Who are we, Abe Lincoln?"
David Kessler

"How about 'ZZ Tophat?'"
Ian Montgomery

"Call me the goat-in-tweed, but it seems once again I've scared away all of my favorite pupils."
John Lyman

"Dr. Einstein told her she was a few pounds too old."
Anthony Scodary

"So fellows, what do you think was in the briefcase from Pulp Fiction?"
Brandon Evans

"I say Reginald, what's in that briefcase?"
"Quit hasslin' me, Dad!"
Sam Corrao Clanon

"... which is why the cat must be assumed to be simultaneously alive and deceased, not entirely unlike Tupac, may he rest in peace, maybe."
Garrett Werner

"Of course they didn't say anything; I have this whole placed wrapped around my finger — my little finger."
Kian Ameli

"So if I was following him, and he was following you, and you were following him..."
Billy Kemper

"Which one of us was talking again?"
Josh Mesiel

"Maybe if we synchronize our steps she won't see us."
Anthony So

"You should see the way I walk after I've had a few beers at the Faculty Club — the difference is staggering."
Sam Coggeshall

"He may look fit, but he still looks like an idiot."
Simone Perrin

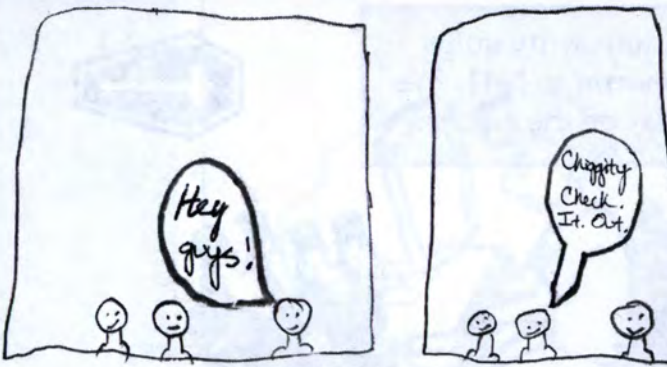

"Look at them, shooting around like idiots on their duo-wheeled dandy horses."
Scout Sanders

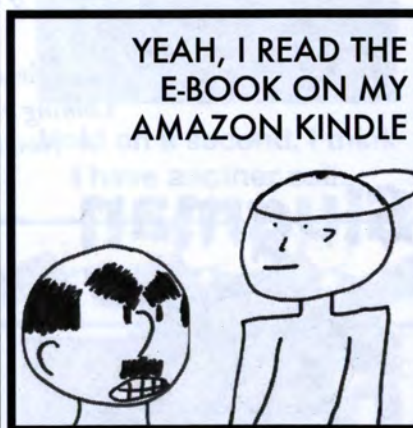

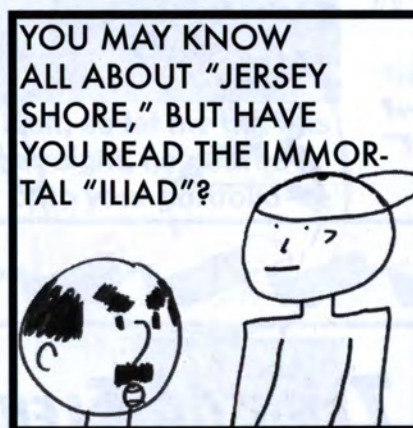

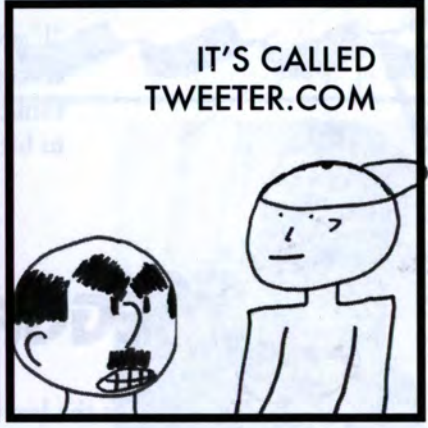

"Bureaucrats walking."

FERENC KOVACS, PUNK SON OF SANDOR KOVACS

Teacher sez I gotta write a report about the Paprika Revolution. You talk about it all the time.
Do you remember what was it like, pops?

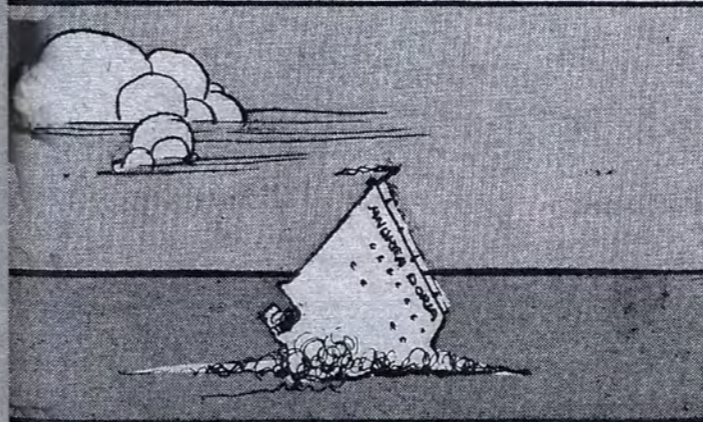

Ferenc, no...

About Paprika Revolution?
Sit down, listen. I tell you, ok?

As you know, Hungary is only making tanks and the paprika at this time...

...just like that, it is over then.

And so, we escape to Italy away from the wars and paprika queues. We must have always hope, Ferenc.

Gee, looks like that musta done some number on you, huh Pops? Say, what's that, some kinda new toy?

Kid, you and your sister have had it too easy for too long. TASTE MY GULASH!

Don't worry about it girl, you got the goods. Oof, he looks good!

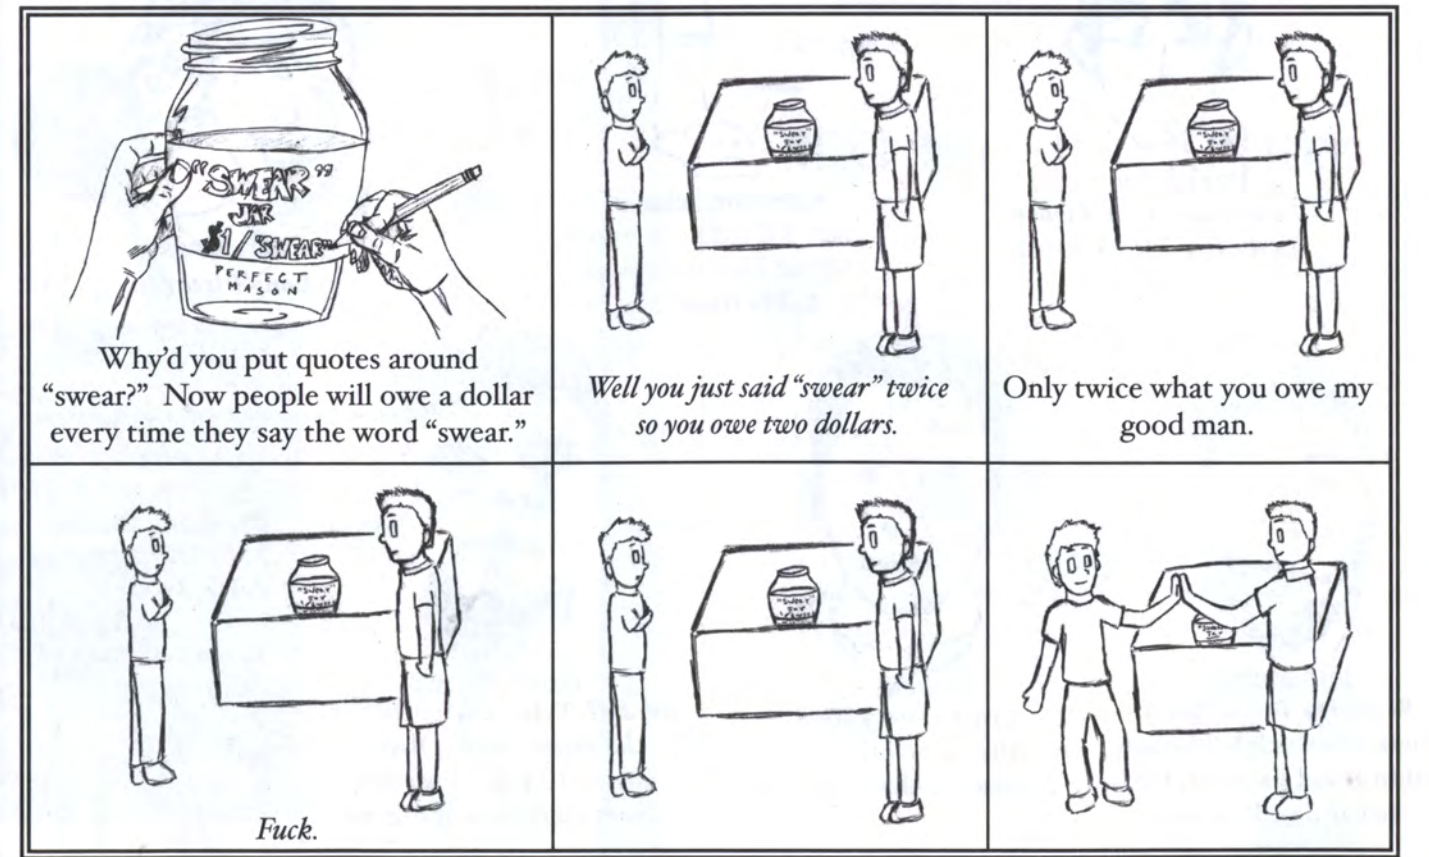

It could never be. It's like we're in two different realities.

Girl I will NOT let you sell yourself short!

No, what I mean to say is that he's a character in a soap opera and I'm a stewardess in a movie within the fictional universe of the soap opera.
